R. Roberts Sharply Challenges Mayor's Group on Statement

by Thomas X. White

At the beginning of the June 22 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, Councilmember Rodney Roberts requested that the mayor's statement on election reform issues read at the beginning of the previous council meeting of June 8 be placed on the evening's agenda. Such requests by members of council are usually agreed to and Roberts' item was added as no. 24 on a fairly full agenda.

The item in question was a brief statement the mayor had read during the Approval of Agenda portion of the June 8 meeting of council, specifically: "Mayor Davis asked to remove item # 13.D, the Charter Amendment to change the date of the council elections from odd-numbered years to even-numbered years, from the agenda."

Davis then read the following prepared statement:

"As a result of further consideration and discussion, we have concluded that the best course is to move on increasing the size of the Council from five to seven members, but to defer any decision to move the date of the election from its present odd-numbered year until after the new, larger council is seated. We also will move forward on the voter participation and education/outreach initiatives we discussed in our May 26th meeting. "We believe the addition of two open seats for this year's election will give citizens a good opportunity to add diversity to the Council and to increase voter interest and turnout. We also believe that the question of whether movement of the dates of the election to even-numbered years is prudent for the City is one which has many pros and cons.

"The debate on such a move will continue regardless of the action we take on it, and, at this point, we are concerned that the controversy will overshadow and interfere with these upcoming important Council elections. Therefore, we are deferring any decision and further discussion on the proposition of moving the date of the Council elections until the new Council is seated."

Item Removed

At the June 8 meeting the four members present agreed to remove item #13.D from the agenda as requested by the mayor. (Councilmember Edward Putens was not present.) Just past 10 p.m. at the June 22 meeting, when the requested item came up for discussion, Roberts initiated discussion of the mayor's prepared statement with several strong allegations regarding use of the collective "we" term throughout the statement and, since he had not been aware of the statement's contents until about five minutes before the meeting, he wondered aloud as to "when or where" the item was discussed by council.

"Where was the meeting?" he asked. If there was such a discussion and/or a meeting, he was not notified or invited to take part, he charged.

Putens, who had not been present when the statement was read, also indicated he was not aware of nor had he been notified of any meeting.

Davis and Councilmembers Leta Mach and Konrad Herling insisted there had been no meeting but rather an exchange of emails or calls resulting in formation of the statement and that the genesis of the statement may have been precipitated by an email from Mach to the city's outside counsel for the election reform issues, Stephen Sylvestri. In that email communication dated June 3 from Mach to Sylvestri, with a copy to Manzi, Mach posed the following question: "... would it be OK to indicate that if this upcoming election results in more diversity on council and/or more turnout that the change (moving to even year elections) would be rescinded? That would be assuming the incoming council did it but candidates could pledge one way or the other. Any thoughts on this would be much appreciated." (The News Review requested but did not receive any emails that may have been exchanged between councilmembers, staff or counsels on the topic.)

It was also brought out in discussion that Sylvestri had assisted with preparation of the statement read by the mayor at the June 8 meeting.

Roberts continued his questioning of the process that had taken place, making strong charges that regular council procedures were not followed. He said he believed the issue was serious enough to warrant an outside investigation into whether there was a breach of council procedures and/or violations of the Maryland Open Meetings law. He suggested that three members of council, in effect, had taken action without notice

Council Okays Safe Routes Project for Springhill Lake

by Jon Sham

At their meeting Monday night, June 22, the Greenbelt City Council approved Springhill Lake Elementary School for submission to the Maryland Safe Routes to School (SRTS) Grant Program, a national program to encourage children to walk and bike to school.

City planning staff has recommended that Greenbelt request an SRTS grant of approximately $130,000 for the Springhill Lake project for engineering and encouragement and traffic calming. They say this will be the request most likely to be approved by the Maryland Highway Safety Office (MHOS).

"My read of this is that program is really . . . a nuts and bolts kind of program," said City Manager Michael P. McLaughlin. "They were really looking for projects that would improve existing pathways, connect areas where there might be a gap in pathways."

Projects that will be considered for an SRTS grant must be for children in kindergarten through 8th grade and must be within two miles of the school. As well, projects that include the four Es, that is, enforcement, education, engineering and encouragement, will be given special consideration to receive the grant.

And although the Springhill Lake project would be considered a win for Greenbelt, Councilmember Leta M. Mach expressed frustration over a project for the future Greenbelt Middle School.

"I'm disappointed that it appears a pedestrian overpass would not be possible in the future," she said. "I still like to think there could be some way we could find some funding for a pedestrian overpass for Greenbelt Middle School but it doesn't look like it's going to come from this area," she said.

The planning staff added in their memo to McLaughlin that the MHOS would be more likely to grant funding for the middle school overpass if the Springhill Lake project is successful.

Celebrate July 4th at Lake: Fireworks, Music and More

The city will hold a variety of free Fourth of July activities on Saturday, July 4 at Buddy Attick Park. All are welcome at the city's Independence Day celebration. There will be a stellar fireworks display over Greenbelt Lake at approximately 9 p.m. The display lasts for 20 to 30 minutes. Come early to claim a viewing spot and enjoy additional programs and amenities at the park.

Kids' Crafts

From 3 to 6 p.m., the Greenbelt Recreation Department will operate a kids' craft tent at the lake front. Wear old clothes and bring white cotton shirts, socks, bags or bandanas to tie-dye. People can also enjoy the playground and walk the beautiful, wooded trail that winds about one-and-one-quarter miles around the lake. Refreshments will be available for purchase courtesy of Greenbelt Babe Ruth Baseball. (No additional concession permits can be granted at this time.)

Pastor Dan Hamlin Celebrates 25th Anniversary in Greenbelt

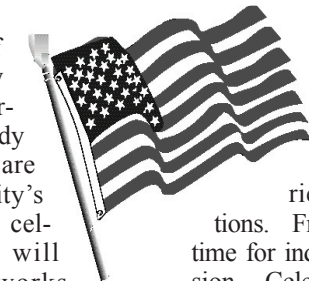

by Paula Clinedinst

On July 1, 2009, Dan Hamlin will celebrate 25 years as Pastor of the Greenbelt Community Church (GCC). One does not need to be a member of the GCC congregation to know Hamlin — he is much more than the pastor of a congregation in the city.

Among other things, he is a Miss Greenbelt announcer at the Labor Day Festival, a member of the Greenbelt Interfaith Leadership Association (GILA), a board member of the Greenbelt Community Foundation (GCF) and a tutor at Greenbelt Elementary School (GES).

Jim Marley, a member of the GCC committee that interviewed Hamlin, describes the decision to hire him as "one of the little victories of my life." He adds that "the little victory turned into a major coup."

Hamlin himself, after attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, went on to attend the Lancaster Theological Seminary. Between the two schools, though, he took some time to work as a carpenter, then on an assembly line and finally in an

Music

At 6:15 p.m., tap toes to a rousing performance by the Greenbelt Concert Band featuring a variety of patriotic selections. From 7:30 to 9 p.m. it's time for individual musical expression. Celebrate freedom and the interweaving of individual rhythms by participating in a community drum circle at the bandstand led by facilitator Katy Gaughan. Bring a drum or use one that is provided. No experience is necessary and all ages are welcome.

Be sure to observe all posted parking regulations and cooperate with the Greenbelt Police Department who will staff the Fourth of July celebration. For the safety of all, fireworks (including sparklers) and alcohol may not be brought into the park.

Buddy Attick Park is located on Crescent Road near Kenilworth Avenue. In the case of inclement weather call the Greenbelt Recreation Department Weather and Information Hotline at 301-474-0646 for schedule adjustments.

iron foundry, all in upstate New York.

Hamlin got involved with Greenbelt's Labor Day Festival through congregation members Kathy Fominaya and Kenny Voigt, both longtime members of the Labor Day Festival Committee. "They knew of my carpentry experience, so I helped build an extension to the stage and, although I am afraid of heights, I helped put up the lights every year," says Hamlin.

For many years since then Hamlin has been the off-stage announcer for the Miss Greenbelt Pageant and for several years, unbeknownst to many, he was a clown in the Labor Day Parade. Eventually other members of GCC joined Hamlin in the so-called "liturgical clowning" and for many years, the group was part of the parade.

Being part of GILA "was a condition of my employment," states Hamlin, "and I feel that I am carrying on an important tradition." (GILA, although it has

Waterfowl Crossing Sign Needed

Earlier this year I saw the remains of a goose who had been run over on Hanover Parkway, where the geese and ducks frequently cross from the pond near the post office. I was wondering whether the city has considered erecting a goose or duck crossing sign to encourage motorists to be on the lookout for them? Thank you.

Dogs and Youthful Newspaper Carriers

I am the mother of two boys who have the paper route at Research and Ridge Roads. My son, Mark, was bitten by a dog on Research Road last night. I have spoken to the homeowner and notified her that my son was terrified and very upset. He has a huge bruise and a cut from the dog's tooth.

I am writing to you to please put something in the newspaper to notify readers that they need to be mindful that most of the delivery people are children or teenagers and they are usually not walking the complete route with a parent or adult. They should also keep in mind that the delivery people are walking around and if their pet is out that the slightest bark or growl would scare anyone, especially someone that has to approach the house. They need to make sure that all dogs are kept in the yard or the house on Fridays until their paper is delivered. I would hate for another person to be bitten or frightened by someone's precious pet.

I also would hate for my son to want to give up the paper route because of dogs. If you could please post something, we would appreciate it. Thank you.

Kids' Herb Planting At Farmers Market

Those who missed the children's herb planting session at the farmers market last weekend are invited to stop by anytime between 10 a.m. and noon to participate in this fun children's activity. There are still a few sage, chive, lemon verbena, anise hyssop, lavender, basil and mint plants that need a good home. Quantities are limited so be sure to get there early.

Former Staffer Sends Fond Letter Home

To those who might still remember me – believe me, I never forget my days when the paper played such a large part in my life. Great days!

I had a knee replacement in March and it didn't go well so I've been in and out of hospitals and nursing home. It is much better now and I'm back to my routine of volunteer activities and bridge.

I have followed the ACLU/NAACP attack on the election system with great astonishment. It seems to me that Greenbelt is the last city on earth which should be accused of doing anything which would hinder diverse participation in civic affairs. The fault, if you can call it that, lies in the unwillingness and lack of interest in getting involved.

I really admired the editorial you wrote. I'll bet that took some brainstorming!

And can the Sir Walter Raleigh really be 28 years old? Why, it seems like only yesterday

Unusual Family Drama

In "My Sister's Keeper," Sara (Cameron Diaz) and Brian (Jason Patric) have the perfect family – that is, until their daughter Anna is diagnosed with leukemia. They have another child, in the hope that the child can provide genetic material for Anna's leukemia treatments. The two daughters grow up to be close but the family is soon torn apart when Anna seeks medical emancipation from her parents and hires a lawyer (Alec Baldwin). From Nick Cassavetes, the director of "The Notebook," comes this touching portrait of a family dealing with tremendous challenges. It is adapted from the bestselling book of the same name by Jodi Picoult. "My Sister's Keeper" opens nationally and in Greenbelt on June 26. It is rated PG-13 for mature themes.

Condolences to Gus and Nancy Tolzman of Orange Court and their family on the death of Gus's mother Margaret Tolzman, who died June 22, 2009, at the age of 94.

Congratulations to:

– Family practitioner Rosaline Langley-Fraser, MD, at 6201 Greenbelt Road, who was awarded 2009 Gold Star distinction by AmeriChoice's Unison Health Plan.

– ERHS student Delphia Varadarajan, who was one of 143 students statewide named as a 2009 Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholar. Each also receives a four-year scholarship worth up to $1,500 per year.

– Fred and Dorothy Baluch, now home at their Ohio farm, send greetings to their Greenbelt friends and report the birth of their first great-grandchild, Molly Ann Haines, on June 17, 2009, to Sean and Becky Haines of Hagerstown, Md. Sean is the son of the Baluchs' daughter Barbara of Front Royal, Va.

A fond farewell and best wishes in her new home to our good neighbor and weekly advertiser Mary Kingsley, whose last ad appears this week, as she is moving from Greenbelt and closing her realty business at least for the present.

We were happy to see the very nice article in last week's Gazette about Patrick and Cornelia Kennedy's coincidental and long-term 25th shared anniversary with Pasta Plus Restaurant in Laurel. The celebrating Greenbelt duo and the restaurant held a special joint Sunday morning anniversary party on June 7, following the restaurant's 25th on June 1, with all proceeds going to an Abruzzo, Italy, earthquake relief fund. Cornelia was a former News Review staffer. Congratulations Kennedys!

A newsy letter arrived from Patty McLeod Tupper, heading toward her new home north of the border. She is happy to be granted a year to file for permanent resident status in Canada. She greatly appreciated the GPS her brother gave her to help her "keep the correct roads" as she made her way north stopping with friends and family.

She picked up her almost-new husband Jim Tupper in Ft. McLeod. They proceeded to Vulcan, where they saw a small version of the Starship Enterprise and then headed home to North Star. She plans to post pictures on Facebook. Patty's and Jim's address is Box 63, North Star, Alberta, Canada T0H 270.

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from our neighbors in Greenbelt East and Greenbelt West. To send information for "Our Neighbors" email us at newsreview@greenbelt.com or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

or involvement by the other two members of council.

Although Putens agreed with Roberts, he recommended that council ask Manzi to take a look at the timeline and appropriateness of the statement and report back to council.

At times during the discussion, the interchanges between the mayor and Roberts were very heated with charges and countercharges tossed back and forth. Roberts further objected to the use of Manzi to review and assess the issue because, “Mr. Manzi is too close to the issue.”

Council approved the motion to request that Manzi look into the matter, with Roberts objecting and suggesting that he may proceed on his own to have the issue investigated.

The suspects are described as two black males, both 20 to 25 years old, 5'10" to 6'0", 150 to 180 pounds with black hair; one was wearing a white shirt and jeans and the other was wearing a black shirt and jeans.

June 18, 8:57 p.m., Beltway Plaza, a man entered Game Stop, displayed a handgun and demanded money and video games. He is described as a black male, 28 to 35 years old, 5'9" to 5'10", 230 to 240 pounds with a light complexion, black hair and beard stubble, wearing a black baseball hat, a dark blue plaid jacket with gray sleeves and hood, dark jeans and black sunglasses. The suspect may have fled in a silver van, possibly a Honda Odyssey, with unknown Maryland tags.

been called different names over the years, has been in existence since 1939.) Jonathan Cohen, Mishkan Torah’s rabbi and Hamlin’s friend, describes Hamlin as the “clergyman’s clergyman.”

Says Cohen, “in my first couple of years [at Mishkan Torah] I had occasion to call on Dan’s experience, common sense and kindness to help me navigate the shoals of congregational life. Every time I hear him speak I learn something useful, not only about the subject at hand but also about how to tailor the subject to suit the occasion.”

Turkey Visit

Last summer Hamlin visited Turkey as the guest of an Islamist movement. Because of his connections with the Rumi Club at the University of Maryland, he was approached about engaging in interfaith dialogue on a sponsored trip to Turkey. Hamlin toured the country and met various religious leaders, including the Chief Rabbi of Turkey, Isak Halera.

Hamlin was overwhelmed at being able to “go to places such as Haran, which is where Abraham was when God said, ‘Leave your home and go to the land I will show you’” (from the Book of Genesis). Hamlin also visited Mt. Koressos, the legendary home of the Virgin Mary, and was “surprised at how powerfully moving visiting these sacred sites would be.

“My whole sense of history changed,” he says. “Haran has been continuously occupied for 10,000 years.”

After the nine-day tour, Hamlin brought back the realization that Muslims are people with the same hopes, fears and desires as everyone else and that “we get a distorted view of Islam from our media.” He adds, “The Islamist movement that hosted me has promoted interfaith dialogue for 50 years.” In a post-9/11 world, this might be powerful and surprising information; Hamlin said the most dangerous part of the trip was “getting around the beltway to Dulles Airport.”

To his congregants, Hamlin is a confidante, a leader and most importantly, a friend. “When someone talks, he listens,” says Barbara Ransom.

Marsha Voigt adds that “In 1984 the Community Church decided a young man serving in Pennsylvania would be a good fit for us and for Greenbelt. Goodness, has Dan proven us right! He embraces ideals the city and all of us cherish: the equality and inclusion of all people; the great value and wonder of our diversity; serving others with the unique gifts each of us possess; and most specially Dan’s is a ministry of love (plus fun and laughing).”

Hamlin says that the best part of GCC is the people. Although he enjoys taking part in Safe Haven, Christmas in April and the annual Baysox game (to name a few GCC activities), what he likes most is the time spent in the Fellowship Hall each Sunday after the service.

Socializing

Every Sunday congregation members socialize for an hour after the service, eating snacks and drinking coffee and enjoying each other’s company. Hamlin talks to as many people as he can, making sure that everyone feels welcome whether a member or not.

“He makes it easy to welcome people into the church because he’s so accessible,” says Rick Ransom. “He greets each and every person as they leave the church after service.”

Growing up in a small town where one must be fifth or sixth generation to not be considered “a newcomer,” Hamlin believes that “it’s important to feel that new people are always welcome.”

A sign hangs in Hamlin’s office that reads “Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.” The words are from the Gospel of Matthew and are words that Hamlin takes to heart.

“Since Dan Hamlin came to the church,” says Bernie Giese, “he really has energized the congregation. Church members go all-out on projects to help others, such as Christmas in April, CROP Walk and Help by Phone. Also the church bazaar and yard sale have become a lot of fun.” She adds, “I also like his sermons, which emphasize serving in our faith by serving others.”

Adds Ransom, “A minister doesn’t have to do all the things Dan does; one could draw the line at just preaching.”

Safe Haven

As mentioned earlier, two of Hamlin’s favorite GCC activities are Safe Haven, when the church hosts 15 homeless men for a week during December and Christmas in April, when church members rehabilitate a home for a disabled, elderly or low-income person or family.

“Dan has tagged our crew ‘the Shock and Awe team,’” says Mike Crompton, GCC congregation member and Christmas in April House Captain. “Dan was there the first time GCC participated in a Christmas in April project and has never missed one.

“A friend commented once about how noisy the sanctuary is before a service,” he says, “and that’s because people are building community.” Much of this is socializing but there are also discussions about upcoming events in the church and in the Greenbelt community.

“We do chat,” says congregant Suze Marley, “and I think it’s because we get excited about the things we’re doing.”

Says Hamlin, “This congregation is exceptional in that it really does put service first; it makes my job so rewarding.”

One of the missions GCC supports is Church World Service (CWS), primarily through participation in and fundraising for the annual CROP Walk, held every May at Lake Artemesia. “Year after year, Dan has faithfully and lovingly led the dedication part of the CROP Walk Celebration at GCC,” says Marty Folk, congregation member and CROP Walk team leader. “Dan has always supported a strong missions program in our church. He truly believes that by giving more of yourself you will receive even more in return.” Hamlin would like to participate in other CWS aid, specifically traveling to other countries to visit the locations of water projects and school projects that have been made possible by CWS.

Supports Children

Hamlin is an avid supporter of the children of GCC and recently allowed them to conduct an entire Sunday service. He is interested in what they have to say and says that “the most important part of Children’s Special Time [when the children join Hamlin at the altar before going to Sunday School] is their news.” “News” could be reports of loose teeth, soccer games, birthdays or sleepovers. What matters to Hamlin is that the children are heard.

“It’s nice that he lets us say stuff,” says Scott Candey, 11. “It makes us feel like we’re part of the congregation.”

Hamlin came of age in the ’60s during the civil rights and peace movements that inspired him to be the social activist he is today. The events of this turbulent time forced him to ask questions like “How can we all live together with justice and peace?”

After reading The Sermon on the Mount, Hamlin had his “a-ha moment”: “here’s where I should ask the questions,” he discovered, and the road to his theological career was paved.

One of Hamlin’s proudest moments was in 1997 when he organized a resistance to the Ku Klux Klan. Threatening flyers had been distributed throughout Greenbelt and, after rallying the other clergy, the group put together an ad for the News Review that stated that the threats would not be tolerated in Greenbelt. “It was important that Greenbelters who could have been targets knew that I stood with them,” he states. One wonders if, at the time, Hamlin realized that he was then very much a target himself. Fortunately, the threats were never carried out.

In his spare time Hamlin likes to walk, read and go to the beach. “I’m addicted to PBS,” he admits, “and I love Sherlock Holmes.” He is also an avid Carolina Tar Heel fan and joined the GCC Junior Youth Group at a Maryland-Carolina women’s basketball game last season. When Carolina lost, Hamlin promised to wear a Maryland T-shirt under his robe at the next Sunday service.

“Even as a pastor he makes wrong decisions,” jokes Alma Knutson, 12, Junior Youth Group member, referencing Hamlin’s allegiance to the Tar Heels. “Since he baptized me, though, I guess I can forgive him.”

Family Cottage

He also enjoys being with his two children and their spouses and his three grandchildren. He enjoys sailing on a lake in upstate New York that is the location of a family cottage. Originally a barn in the 1800s, the cottage is located at a steamboat stop.

In 1916 the barn was converted to a lodge and there are almost 100 years of graffiti as evidence of the lodge’s use. One of Hamlin’s favorites is on the bathroom door and reads: “Jane Wilcox – first time in a bathing suit. What a mermaid! July 17, 1917.” Every summer, the entire family – children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, cousins – goes to the cottage for a week-long family vacation.

“I thought I would be here for five or six years and then move on to bigger and better,” says Hamlin of his first coming to Greenbelt. He quickly realized, though, that “there might be bigger but there certainly isn’t better.” He did mull over retirement this year but came to the conclusion that “I don’t want to. I’m still healthy and I’m still making a contribution.”

Folk adds to that: “He leads by example . . . with heart, soul and mind.”

Do You Know Our Next Outstanding Citizen?

by James Giese

The chase is on once more. Who will be caught (by surprise, we hope) when named at the Friday Opening Ceremony of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival as the 2009 Greenbelt Outstanding Citizen? Who will it be who receives the well-deserved applause of the many Greenbelters in attendance?

Right now no one knows the answer. But you might know just who that person should be. If so, it is up to you to see that that person receives the full consideration she or he deserves in this year's selection process.

It's time to let your nomination choice be known. A nomination form appears in this week's News Review. You can use it to submit your nomination to Outstanding Committee Chair Bob Zugby. Or you can do it simply by writing Zugby a letter telling all that you know about your choice. The more information the committee has, the better. You can even email him at rczugby@aol.com.

Qualifications

What qualifications does the Outstanding Citizen Committee look for in making its selection? The choice must be a Greenbelt resident, one whose actions have demonstrated a genuine interest in making our community a better place in which to live. The committee's choice will be a person who has contributed to the community through volunteer efforts. That choice could be someone who has been involved in so many activities that the person's name is well known throughout the community. Or the person selected could be someone whose contributions have been done in such a quiet, non-assuming manner as to be relatively unknown to most except friends and associates. The committee, with great difficulty, makes its choice on the basis of importance and the lasting impact of the contributions made by each nominee.

Often there are several nominees deserving of honor and recognition. The committee must then make the difficult choice of selecting the one and only to receive the honor for that year and hope that those passed over will continue to be nominated in future years.

Many outstanding citizens have been selected for their involvement in more than one community activity but usually the individual's efforts in one activity have been particularly noteworthy. The 2005 selectee, Jay Remenick, is noted for his dedication as a volunteer fireman. Others who have served this wonderful and essential organization that protects our lives and property may also deserve to be recognized.

Some selectees were involved with providing leadership to youth sports or other youth activities. The city has been blessed with many such deserving volunteers.

Several have been recognized for leadership roles in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. With so many members of our community working together on each year's celebration to raise funds for so many worthy causes, there surely must have been others deserving of recognition who have been missed.

At least seven former Outstanding Citizens have been recognized for their work with the Greenbelt News Review, the voice of the city for almost 70 years. With more than 50 citizens involved with assuring that Greenbelters are kept informed each week, surely there are others worthy of recognition who have been missed.

Some have been honored for their work with the Greenbelt Lions Club which has made many worthy contributions to the community. Probably many others who work through this and other service organizations could meet the test for being recognized as outstanding.

Others have been recognized for their work with city cooperatives, helping to better education, serving our senior population, contributing to their churches, participating in neighborhood watches or serving the Greenbelt Museum.

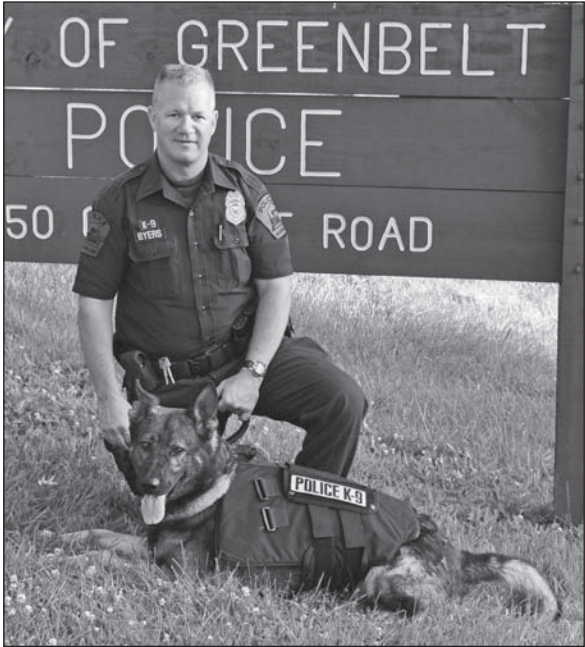

Many Missed

Greenbelt is blessed with many organizations striving to make our city a better place in which to live. Surely among them are individuals whose contributions are so meaningful they deserve to be recognized.

But will they be? That is up to each and every Greenbelt resident whose responsibility it is to make known to the Outstanding Citizens Committee the names of persons deserving our recognition and honor.

Please don't wait until the August 3 deadline to make your choice known. The sooner you put together your nomination, the better chance you have of including all the important information needed to cause the committee to agree that your choice is the best.

MPO Byers and His Partner Leon Win Vest

Master Police Officer Barry Byers and his canine partner Leon received a new ballistic K9 vest this weekend as part of a raffle at the United States Police Canine Association Region 3 PD1 Field Trials held at Schrom Hills Park in Greenbelt.

The raffle was held by 6-year-old Kayleigh Crimmins of Chesapeake, Va., who sold her toys in order to raise enough to buy a bulletproof vest for a police K9 as part of the Kids for K9s program.

Police Reassessed For Accreditation

The Greenbelt Police Department recently underwent the process of re-accreditation, in which a team of assessors from the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA) conducts an onsite inspection. The Department must adhere to 463 standards to be accredited. A public hearing was held on Monday, June 15 at which many spoke positively about the department and its officers.

The assessors had many complimentary things to say about how the police department is adhering to the CALEA requirements. Overall the department received an outstanding onsite review and the assessors will be forwarding a favorable recommendation to the commission.
